TODAY'S ARTIST

Naida Cole's musical accomplishments testify to her abilities and point to a promising career. Born in 1974, Naida has earned honours and awards on both flute and piano, earning top marks in competitions and music examinations. She has performed nationally (Canada) and internationally and her performances have been broadcast by CBC.

Naida is a Master Class student of Leon Fleischer at the Royal Conservatory of Music and has been a student in the Young Musicians programme at Banff School of Fine Arts.

She has won national competitions and represented Canada in competitions abroad. In 1989 she placed third in the Concertino Praga, an international competition held by Czechoslovak Radio. Other Canadian musicians who have placed well in this competition and gone on to international careers have been Jon Kimura Parker and Louis Lortie.
